COMING TOGETHER AS FRIENDS

"If we, a group of teenagers can appreciate and tolerate each other's cultures, everyone else can do it as well"
Florence Schwartz

Check out
www.sticksnstones.org.au
- messages for harmony and stories about place, culture and racial tolerance.

Photography: Elka Kerkhofs
Graphic Design: Claire Pallant Design

Torture & Trauma Survivors Service of the Northern Territory Inc.

Tracks

Department of Immigration and Multicultural Affairs

YOU ME AUSTRALIAN
living in harmony

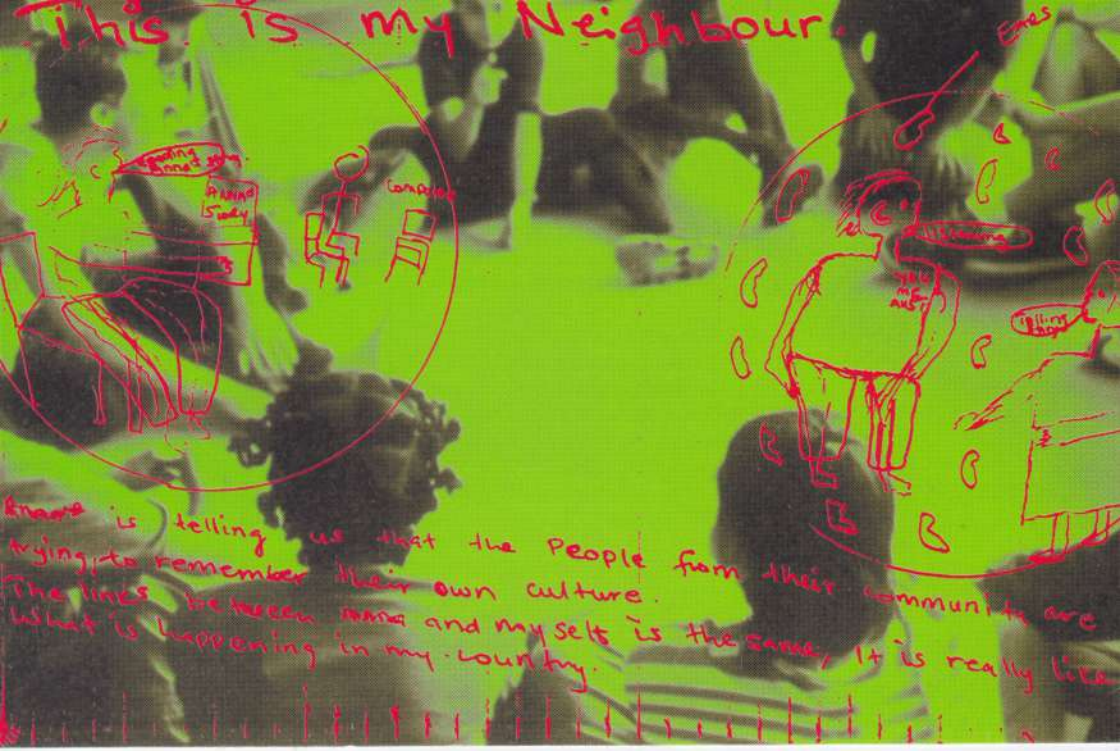
Museums & Art Galleries of the Northern Territory

Northern Territory Government
Department of Arts & Museums

QANTM

Northern Territory Government
Office of Ethnic Affairs

Stick'n'Stones was a community arts project developed by TTSSNT (Torture and Trauma Survivors Service of the Northern Territory) and Tracks Inc - a dance and performing arts company. Stick'n'Stones has been proudly supported by the Commonwealth Government's Living in Harmony Initiative. Our web site cards are sponsored by the Northern Territory Government through the Office of Ethnic Affairs.



Knows is telling us that the people from their community are trying to remember their own culture. The lines between knows and myself is the same, it is really like what is happening in my country.

"Don't make people be the same as you, just try to find out something about them, because although we are all different, we are all people who deserve to live."

Nina Latinovic

Check out
www.sticksnstones.org.au
- messages for harmony and stories about place, culture and racial tolerance.

Harmony Day 2001

Photo: Elka Kerkhofs
Graphics: Claire Pallant Design
Drawing: "This is my neighbour", James Justo

Torture & Trauma Survivors Service of the Northern Territory Inc.

Tracks

Department of Immigration and Multicultural Affairs

YOU ME AUSTRALIAN
living in harmony

Museums & Art Galleries of the Northern Territory

Northern Territory Government
Department of Arts & Museums

QANTM

Northern Territory Government
Office of Ethnic Affairs

From 1999-2000, TTSSNT and Tracks Inc. ran "Sticks 'n' Stones", a community arts project supported by the Commonwealth Government's Living in Harmony initiative. The project can still be viewed on the web site, thanks to QANTM. The Sticks 'n' Stones "postcards for harmony" are proudly sponsored by the Northern Territory Government through the Office of Ethnic Affairs.